Services

FACT SHEET

Under the NSW Livestock Loading Scheme, drivers must have successfully completed an approved half-day training course by 1 May 2013.

This Fact Sheet provides information about the NSW Livestock Loading Scheme Driver Training Course currently approved trainers, their operating areas, and contact details.

NSW Livestock Loading Scheme (NSWLLS)

The new Scheme provides increased mass limits for livestock vehicles that comply with specified vehicle standards, route restrictions and operating conditions.

The Scheme commenced on 1 December 2012 on approved HML routes, and will be extended to other NSW roads during 2013.

Driver training requirements

The Scheme's operating conditions include driver training requirements.

From 1 May 2013, drivers must carry evidence they have successfully undertaken either the:

- NSWLLS Driver Training Course approved by Roads and Maritime Services (RMS); or
- Victorian Livestock Loading Scheme (VLLS) Driver Training Course approved by Vicroads.

NSW Driver Training Course

The half-day NSWLLS Driver Training Course is intended to ensure that drivers understand:

- The legal requirements for operating under the NSW Scheme including vehicle standards, route restrictions and mass limits.
- The causes and prevention of livestock vehicle roll-over.

The Training Course includes individual and small group assessment tasks.

Approved trainers

RMS has approved qualified and experienced trainers to provide the NSWLLS Driver Training Course.

Approved Trainers may provide the NSWLLS Driver Training Course by:

- Conducting publicly advertised training courses on a fee per applicant basis.
- Providing "in-house" training for livestock transport operators on a fee for service basis.

Fees for the training course are set by, and must be paid to, the Approved Trainer.

A list of Approved Trainers and their contact details is included on page 3 of this fact sheet.

Driver application form

Drivers seeking to undertake the NSWLLS Driver Training Course must complete an application form.

Application forms can be downloaded from the RMS website or obtained from an Approved Trainer.

Completed application forms must be given to the approved trainer before, or on the day of, the training course.

Driver NSWLLS certificates

Drivers that successfully complete the NSWLLS Driver Training Course will be provided with an interim certificate by the Approved Trainer.

Once issued, the interim certificate authorises a driver to operate under the NSWLLS.

A permanent wallet-sized certificate will be issued to the driver within 4-6 weeks.

The certificate must be carried at all times when driving/operating under the scheme.
